New Topic

Our learning will be about significant people in History.....

Nurturing Nurses

('Nurture'means to care for,or protect something.)

What do you already know about nurses? What do they do?

We'll be finding out more about how nursing began, and how it has changed over time by learning about some important people from history.

I'd like you to be thinking about some questions you'd like to ask about our new topic.

But first let me introduce you to our significant people.....

Florence Nightingale

1820-1910

1805-1881

Mary Seacole

Mary Seacole

Mary was born in Kingston, Jamaica. Her father was a Scottish army officer and her mother was Jamaican and made medicines from plants. Mary was called a 'doctress' because she was able to cure common illnesses. She learned about medicine from her mother.

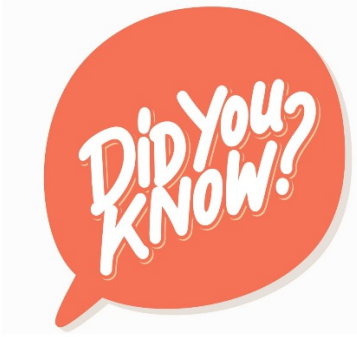
Mary is remembered for her humanitarian work and her courage to challenge social, political and cultural values of the Victorian Age.

Florence Nightingale

Florence Nightingale is important because she was a nurse who saved many lives during the Crimean War.

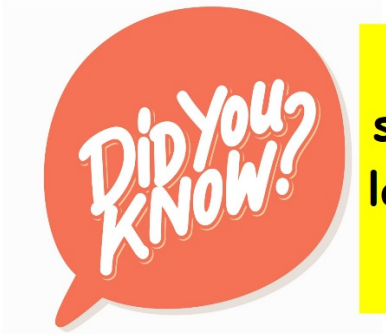
In Victorian Britain girls would usually do house work, crafts or charity work but Florence was educated and interested in medicine.

Florence helped to figure out ways to keep hospitals cleaner and trained more nurses so that they could help ill people to get better.



In 2019, 7 buildings were made into 'Nightingale' Hospitals around the U.K.

This was to help the NHS treat patients with Coronavirus.



You can see statues of both ladies in central London.

Nursing has changed a lot since the Victorian age. Just look at how the uniforms have changed over time - what do you notice?

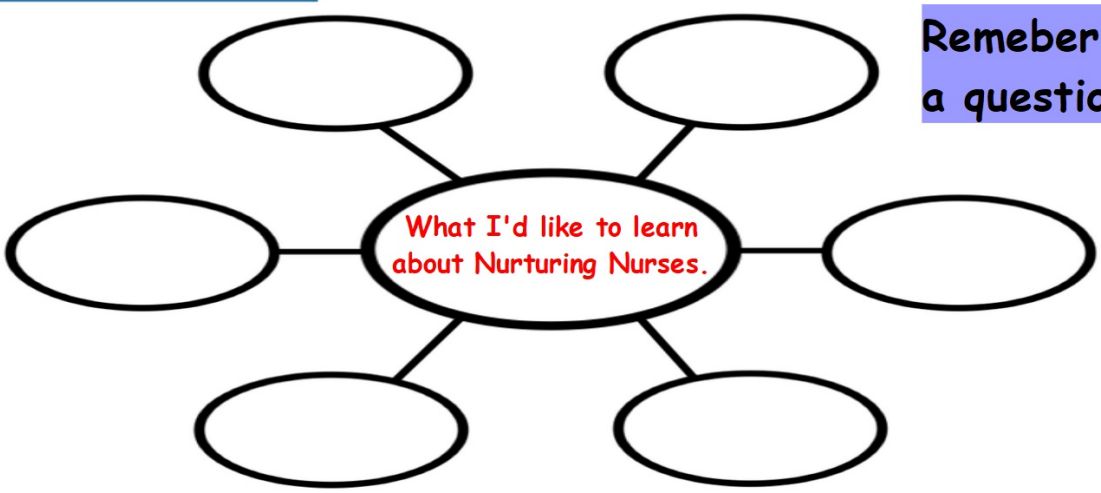
These are some objects that nurses have used in the past and today.
Do you have a question about them?

I would like you to write a few questions about what you'd like to learn this term.

What would you like to know more about?

Remeber to use a question mark.



Before you go, let's play a game.
When I ask, show me with your hands who you think it was.

F for Florence

Who was born in Italy?

M for Mary

Whose father was from Scotland?

Who rode a horse onto the battlefield to get to wounded soldiers?

Who owned a pet owl?

THANK YOU FOR coming

GOODBYE!
